

WILL DELAY KNAPP TRIAL TWO MONTHS

Baby Ill, Defense's Principal Witness Won't Come Here Because She Feels Infantile Paralysis—Special Assignment for Banker's Hearing.

Counsel for Knapp Fails to Urge Change of Venue But Asks Postponement—Bowers Holds All Papers of the Defunct Banking Institution.

The unwillingness of Mrs. Grace M. Rahm, principal witness for the defense, to leave her home in Brooklyn, while her baby is ill, caused a further postponement in the trial of former banker Herbert M. Knapp, whose case was discussed before Judge Tuttle in the criminal superior court this morning.

The court said he would make a special assignment for the trial in November, although the superior court is not in session here then. The exact date will be determined upon by counsel on both sides.

State's Attorney Homer S. Cummings came to court prepared to argue against a motion for change of venue filed a short time ago by Judge William H. Conley, Jr., representing Knapp.

To his surprise Judge Conley did not urge the motion for change of venue but instead asked for a postponement of the case.

First reason was that he and his associate, Judge Carl Foster, were not prepared to try the case at this time.

He said many counts originally brought against Knapp had been stricken out and new counts substituted. It was also claimed that all the Burr & Knapp books and in fact every scrap of paper belonging to the firm had been in the custody of Attorney S. D. Bowers, who is assisting the state's attorney. This situation made it difficult for the lawyers to go over the books and prepare the defense.

Then Judge Conley took up the question of Mrs. Rahm's absence. He said he had talked with her at her Brooklyn home. Because of the infantile paralysis epidemic she did not dare bring her five months old child to this city. In fact, she absolutely refused to come into this state at present. She was perfectly willing to testify, she said, when home conditions were favorable.

As there is no law which can compel her to come to this state and testify Judge Conley said the problem was difficult. Mrs. Rahm for years had charge of the Burr & Knapp books and her testimony regarding the state and also by Knapp's counsel as the most important in the entire case.

In answer to Judge Conley's plea the state's attorney said the argument that the defense had not sufficient time to prepare did not sound convincing.

Knapp's arrest was issued last spring and ample time had elapsed to give counsel for the accused opportunity to collect material for the defense.

Attorney Cummings declared the state was very anxious to try the case. An adjournment would be the more desirable for the state than the defense because numerous witnesses from other states had been notified to come to this city and it was doubtful if some of these persons would come at a later date. He suggested that Mrs. Rahm's deposition could be taken in Brooklyn.

Judge Tuttle remarked that depositions in an important case of this kind were unsatisfactory. He thought the only reason for a postponement would be in the absence of Mrs. Rahm. As her testimony was regarded as important by both sides he did not think it advisable for the trial to start until every chance had been given both the state and the defense to present all available evidence.

He asked the state's attorney about a postponement until the December term but Attorney Cummings replied that it was a short term and as the Knapp trial probably would be a long one it would be inconvenient to have it interrupted by the Christmas holidays. Judge Tuttle then said he would make a special assignment in November.

The state's attorney inquired what had become of the motion for a change of venue. He said the state had gone to considerable expense to collect affidavits and had prepared to combat the motion. Judge Conley replied that he had decided not to press the motion.

He found upon investigation that there was no basis for asking for a change of venue. It was discovered by him and his associate that the case was practically unknown in the country outside of this city, so he could not urge that Knapp would be unable to get a fair trial in this country.

Two More Licenses Near Arms Works

As no appeal was filed within the time allowed by law, the county commissioners this morning issued liquor licenses to Pak Bros. and Jacob Hausman, the first dealers to be allowed in the hitherto restricted Barnum avenue territory. Pak Bros. moved from North Washington avenue to Barnum and Bruce avenues. Hausman transferred from Willard street to Barnum avenue and Elizabeth street. The Remington Arms and other manufacturers remonstrated against the transfer applications.

TRUST CO. MAY HAVE TO NAME NEW DIRECTORS

Clayton Act Likely to Affect Seven of Bank's Executive Board

ASK INTERPRETATION OF KERN AMENDMENT

Three Bridgeport Institutions Seem to Come Under New Ruling

Radical changes in the directorates of some of the most prominent banking institutions of this city are likely to occur on or before Oct. 15, as the outcome of a decision by the Federal reserve board as to what constitutes "substantial competition" under the Clayton law prohibiting interlocking directorates.

The reserve board has decided, according to despatches from Washington, that any two banks having resources to the amount of $5,000,000 or more shall not have interlocking directorates.

It is known that one institution in this city has as many as seven directors who are also directors in other national banks or trust companies.

An effort is now being made to ascertain from the Federal Reserve board of directors in a national bank also on the directorate of a trust company bank may not be classed beyond the pale of the ruling because of the different character of the business transacted.

In the event of the application being denied it will necessitate immediate revision of the directorates of at least three banks in this city. Banks all over the United States will be similarly affected.

Charles G. Sanford, president of the First-Bridgeport National bank, and a director in the Federal Reserve bank said today:

"Referring to the Clayton act, it is possible that it will affect the directorates of three banks and also on the board of the Bridgeport Trust Co. The ground for this request is that the business of the trust company is radically different in character from that of the national banks and that the trust company is not in 'substantial competition' under the law."

"Applications have been filed with the Federal Reserve board by some of the national bank directors in Bridgeport, requesting permission to serve on their board and also on the board of the Bridgeport Trust Co. The ground for this request is that the business of the trust company is radically different in character from that of the national banks and that the trust company is not in 'substantial competition' under the law."

"These applications probably will be determined within a very few days."

Twenty-Four of Nation's Foremost Scientists Swear Allegiance.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Twenty-four of America's foremost scientists, comprising the navy's civil consulting board headed by Thomas A. Edison, took the oath of allegiance to the United States today as officers of the federal government. The oath was administered in the office of Secretary Daniels preliminary to organization of the board under the new law giving it a legal status.

The scientists were taken on board the naval yacht Dolphin for a cruise down to the southern drill grounds off the Virginia coast to witness the target practice maneuvers of the Atlantic fleet.

Before Mr. Edison arrived at the navy department he went to Mount Vernon, Va., the home of George Washington, made a personal inspection of the mansion and planted an elm tree in the yard. He was asked to inspect the electrical wiring of the house which he tried, pronouncing it safe.

Secretary Daniels formally welcomed the scientists into the federal service and predicted that their enlistment would do much to restore American prestige upon the seas and assure the "glorious future of our nation and our country."

A. L. Riker of Bridgeport is a member of the board.

MILK PRODUCERS READY TO FIGHT PASTEURIZATION

Southwestern Connecticut Dairy Farmers Meet In Hawleyville.

DIRECTOR NAMED FROM EACH TOWN

Board Will Meet in Danbury Saturday With Authority to Elect Officers

(Special to The Farmer.) Hawleyville, Conn., Sept. 19.—Organization of the Western Connecticut Milk Producers' association was effected at a largely attended meeting of dairy farmers and others interested in dairy products, in this railroad center yesterday afternoon.

While no definite steps were taken against the proposed compulsory pasteurization of milk sold in Bridgeport, the sentiment of the meeting, as reflected by the speakers, and evidenced in the informal discussions growing out of the meeting, proved to be strongly against pasteurization, especially against pasteurization done privately.

If the city of Bridgeport provides a municipal pasteurization plant, the opposition will not be so strong. But even then, well informed dairymen declare, there will be a feeling of resentment and a sentiment that the city imposing a needless hardship upon the dairy farmer.

The meeting yesterday was for organization. Between 50 and 60 names were pledged. Great interest was manifested. The chief business of the meeting was the organization of a board of directors, one from each town in Southwestern Connecticut. This board is vested with power to elect officers of the association, and when the directors meet in Danbury, on Saturday, this will be done. C. F. Nichols of Stratford, a former member of the state legislature from Monroe, acted as clerk of the meeting.

Pasteurization was the chief theme of the several speakers, including Clifford I. Stoddard of Woodbridge, of the State Board of Agriculture; Prof. H. F. Jenkins of Storrs Agricultural College, and S. J. Wright of the Fairfield County Farm bureau.

One of the larger dealers, who supplies 216 customers, reported that he had made a canvass of his customers, and had found that only eight of his entire trade preferred pasteurized milk. The meeting yesterday included 60 producers, with a total of 700 cows.

There was criticism at the meeting of the statements purporting to come from the bacteriological laboratory recently instituted by the City of Bridgeport, to the effect that "Bridgeport milk is rotten." The dealers declare that these general statements are unfair, that there must be some samples submitted that are better than others, and that to condemn all is to discriminate unjustly against the dealer who conscientiously strives to produce wholesome milk.

The question also was raised as to the showing made by certain samples of pasteurized milk that had been tested at the laboratory. It was argued that the laboratory was strangely silent when questions were asked as to the showing of the pasteurized product.

The board of directors of the association includes: Newtown, William C. Johnson; Monroe, Robert Sinclair; Easton, J. A. Sherwood; Trumbull, D. M. Fuller; Bethel, P. Vanbeck; Danbury, George A. Makay; New Fairfield, N. Hatch; Brookfield, William H. Blackman; Redding, A. G. Barnett; Huntington, Nathan Brooks; Fairfield, Edw. Morehouse; Roxbury, Lee Dickinson; New Milford, E. F. Hartwell; Southbury, S. J. Blackman.

LAYS OUT SEVEN DISPUTANTS WITH AID OF CROWBAR

Fairfield Field Looks Like War Scene When Argument Is Over.

Modern warfare with its starshells and hand-to-hand combat in the trenches has been simulated on a small scale recently in Fairfield, and yesterday the details of the struggle were told in Judge Bacon Wakeman's town court.

Two weeks ago, according to testimony offered, Andrew Soss defeated and tossed him the Polish-speaking men took seats on a stone all above the safe on the Fairfield turnpike. Merely as spectators to the coming freight, eight sympathizers with the allies took observation seats on the roadside side of the roadway.

Soss, who gave his address as Fairfield avenue, Bridgeport, disappeared in the darkness for about 10 minutes. When he returned he had a rifle and it is alleged he was accompanied by one other individual bearing a flashlight, whose name has not been given.

In the inkly darkness Soss admits he mistook the side of the road on which the coming battle was to be staged. Witnesses declare that there was a flash of light, followed by a dull thud. There was a second flash of light, a whang and another dull thud, continuing by at least two more flashes and thuds, followed by groans. The light disappeared and Soss was seen no more. Half an hour later Schick's saloon took the form of an improvised field hospital. The first casualty list was John Udinsky, whose head was addressed from his forehead to the rear of his cranium. He had crawled to the saloon nearly an hour after Soss' departure. Immense behind a fence in the field, the others were found. It is understood that only one of eight innocent bystanders has escaped the telling blows from the rifle butt wielded by Soss in the light of the torch.

In court last week upon the complaint of Udinsky, Soss was fined $5 and costs and sentenced to 10 days in jail, which he served yesterday. Two additional complaints against Soss were heard, George Baker and Frank Diskay, both of Fairfield. A fine of $1 and costs was imposed by Justice Wakeman though Attorney Abe Geduldig argued that Soss had already received enough punishment. It is expected that four others who suffered in the fray may yet be heard from.

WEALTHY VICTIMS ASK FOR SECRECY AS BLACKMAILING GANG IS BROUGHT TO TRIAL

UNIONS' ULTIMATUM ON STRIKE OF 700,000 IS PRESENTED TO MITCHELL

New York, Sept. 19.—Mayor Mitchell called into conference with him today representatives of the chamber of commerce and Merchants' Association to try to avert the threatened strike of 700,000 workers in this city in sympathy with the street railway employees.

The mayor has received warning from the labor leaders that unless he and the committee of businessmen settle the carmen's strike by Thursday night, a general walkout of virtually all the labor unions in this city and vicinity will be ordered. No plan has been proposed for the consideration of the mayor and the businessmen's committee. President Shonts, of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, said the company would have no further negotiations with the carmen's union but was willing to consider any proposition from the mayor.

The street railway strike was extended to Queens County early today when many conductors and motormen of the New York and Queens County Railroad went out in protest against the use of their members to operate cars and break the strike in Manhattan. Union leaders asserted that fourteen per cent. of its cars were in service and that not more than 500 men had left their places. Thousands of Queens residents who work in Manhattan traveled by ferry and automobile.

Will Keep Party Principles Alive, Say Delegates at New Haven.

New Haven, Sept. 19.—A number of Progressive party members met here today to discuss political conditions as they relate to their party, to choose a state chairman to fill the vacancy which came about by the resignation of Joseph W. Alsop, of Avon, to elect a treasurer and to plan for the campaign. The call was issued by J. B. Smith, of Orange. The number of members who had responded at noon was not large. Most of them were men who took prominent part in the Progressive campaigns of 1912 and 1914 in Connecticut.

F. M. Chase, who had charge of the Progressive state headquarters in Hartford, four years ago, looked in upon the gathering. The guest of the day was Bainbridge Colby, of New York, who was met by a delegation upon his arrival.

The Progressives sat down to lunch about 1 o'clock and later they were to discuss party affairs. Several members said they did not believe any suggestion would be offered to put a ticket in the field or to come out for endorsement of any candidate of any other party. The main idea would be to continue the organization against a time when it might be needed.

As to endorsement of any candidate of the Democratic or Republican party, members pointed out that they felt it to be wisdom to adhere to the sentiment of the Indianapolis conference, which was to let every Progressive use his own judgment this fall.

Mr. Colby was to address the meeting after the luncheon.

Rob Apartments As Owner Sits On Porch

Burglars, at 5 o'clock this morning ransacked the apartments of George Clancy, 671 East Washington avenue, while his wife sat on the porch, and escaped with jewelry to the value of about $240. Unconscious of the fact that burglars were operating in her home, Mrs. Clancy returned after an absence of about 15 minutes to find three gold watches, a twin diamond ring, set with an emerald in the center, a solid gold chain and girl's gold bracelet missing from the bureau.

The thieves, who must have left by the rear entrance, also appropriated about 60 cents in change.

It was not expected that any agreement would be reached today.

DENNIS J. GAYNOR PASSES AWAY AT AGE OF SEVENTY

Prominent Manufacturer Dead After Illness of Many Weeks.

Dennis J. Gaynor, president of the Gaynor Manufacturing Co., and for many years a respected resident of this city, died this afternoon at his home, 972 Broad street, Stratford. Death followed an illness of several weeks' duration and was due to a complication of ailments. Mr. Gaynor had been gradually sinking for the past two weeks and his life was despaired of for several days. This morning he suffered another sinking spell and his family was summoned. They were at the bedside when the end came at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Despite his 70 years, Mr. Gaynor was active in business until last July. He was daily at the factory of the Gaynor Manufacturing Co., and his entire working day was devoted to actual supervision of manufacturing processes in the factory.

In July Mr. Gaynor was taken ill and was prevailed upon to retire from active business. Since that time he remained at his home in Stratford, and has been under a physician's care for most of the time. His wonderful vitality enabled him to fight off the illness for many weeks before taking to his bed.

Mr. Gaynor was born in Baranadarah, Queens County, Ireland, on August 24, 1846. He was the son of John and Mary (Mulhall) Gaynor. He came to America with his parents at the age of four, first settling in Unionville, N. Y. Two years later his family removed to Waterbury.

In Waterbury, Mr. Gaynor learned the brass business, and became prominent in that industry. His genial personality and splendid character were soon recognized by his townsmen and for three successive terms he was elected city treasurer.

In 1874 he was married to Miss Charlotte Gibson, of Waterbury. Ten children were born to this union, of whom six survive. In 1887, Mr. Gaynor removed to Bridgeport, where he founded the Gaynor-Mitchell Co., manufacturers of brass goods, then located at Oak and George streets.

This company was reorganized a few years ago as the Gaynor Manufacturing Co. A new factory was built in Stratford, and it was that he might be nearer to his business that Mr. Gaynor removed to that town two years ago.

During his long residence in this city, Mr. Gaynor earned the friendship and respect of a wide circle of acquaintances. Though a life-long Democrat, Mr. Gaynor did not seek public honors in this city, his political activities being confined to those of an earnest worker for his party.

Surviving Mr. Gaynor are his wife, a brother, John F. Gaynor, and a sister, Mrs. Mary Brown, residing at 972 Noble avenue; two daughters, Miss Charlotte R. Gaynor of Stratford, and Mrs. William A. Styles, of Montreal; and four sons, Arthur C. Gaynor, of Bridgeport; Frank A. Gaynor, a lawyer of New York; Joseph F. Gaynor, of Bridgeport; and Edwin C. Gaynor of Stratford. Arthur, Joseph and Edwin Gaynor were associated with their father in the Gaynor Manufacturing company.

Alarming Spread of Epidemic in Bay State

Boston, Sept. 19.—The greatest spread of infantile paralysis since the disease became epidemic in this state was reported to the department of health today. Thirty-nine cases developed in the last 24 hours, as compared with 40 in the previous 48 hours.

New York, Sept. 19.—Thirty-five new cases of infantile paralysis, an increase of 20 over yesterday's report, was shown in the department of health bulletin issued for the 24 hours ending at 10 a. m. today. There were ten deaths, an increase of four.

Fleeced By Slick Band, They Besiege Secret Service Agents With Requests That Their Names Be Kept Secret During Proceedings.

Seven Under Arrest to Be Given Preliminary Hearing Today—Former Swindler, Now State's Witness, Tells How the Syndicate Worked.

Chicago, Sept. 19.—Release on bond of several members of the alleged blackmail syndicate arrested by federal agents here, and possible continuance of their preliminary hearing, was in prospect today as witnesses from eastern cities arrived in Chicago to testify against the seven persons under arrest.

James Christian, one of the seven arrested in the raid here Saturday night, was freed on a $2,500 bond late last night, officials admitting they had little evidence to connect him with the alleged fleeing of Mrs. Rustin Kilmer of Philadelphia, the principal witness against the defendants. The three alleged leaders probably will be held under $25,000 bond. These three are Helen Evers, Edward ("Doc") Donahue, and Harry ("Slick") Russell.

Mrs. Kilmer is expected in Chicago today to testify at the hearing, which is set for 2 p. m.

The story of the blackmailing of Mrs. Kilmer involves Frank Crocker, a member of the band, who is alleged to have fled here, quarreled with his confederates over a division of the spoils and then turned state's evidence against them. Crocker is to be given immunity.

Mrs. Kilmer, a divorcee with two small children, met Crocker in a New York hotel while there on a buying trip for a Philadelphia concern. She and Crocker, according to the confession Crocker is said to have made to federal officials, went to an apartment for a dinner and, after a theatrical performance, a bogus warrant for the arrest of the couple for violation of the Mann act.

Crocker, affecting surprise and indignation, wrote out a check for $5,000 and advised Mrs. Kilmer to pay the men what money she had and this she did.

When Mrs. Kilmer threatened to tell her story to federal authorities, members of the band, according to government charges, spirited her away to a hotel in Montreal. There she was held prisoner for six weeks. The story of Crocker's adventure with Mrs. Kilmer is in the files of Commissioner Lewis Mason's court, before which Crocker testified at a hearing June 7.

The federal authorities here, it was learned today, were besieged by several wealthy men and women who claimed to have been victims of the syndicate and who pleaded that their names be kept out of the case. They were given to understand, it is said, that no names would be revealed unless it was necessary in order to obtain convictions.

JUDGE BEARDLSEY TO BE NOMINATED TO GOVERNORSHIP

New Haven Delegates Pledge Support to Bridgeport Candidate.

Judge Morris B. Beardsley, of Bridgeport, will be nominated for governor by the Democratic state convention which will hold its opening session this evening at Music hall, New Haven. The nominations will be made tomorrow.

Attorney Charles S. Canfield, of this city, will present Judge Beardsley's name to the convention and there will be several seconding speeches. It is probable that Judge Beardsley's name will have no opposition and that the nomination will be by acclamation. New Haven Democrats, at their city convention last night, instructed their 25 delegates for Judge Beardsley.

It is understood that former Gov. Simon E. Baldwin will nominate National Committeeman Homer S. Cummings, of Stamford, for United States Senator. The New Haven delegation is also pledged to the support of Mr. Cummings whose nomination undoubtedly will be unanimous.

The other offices in the state ticket probably will be joined with the same despatch that will characterize the nominations for the major office. Attorney Francis P. Guilfoyle, of Waterbury, seems to have no opposition for the nomination as lieutenant-governor.

Former Senator Alton P. Miner of New London, is mentioned for comptroller, while George Ulrich, of Hartford, may be the choice for treasurer. Jason P. Thompson, a New Haven (Continued on Page 2.)
